Public contact number for Public Safety and Emergency
Preparedness Canada (PSEPC)

-----
11. The contact number for Canadians wishing to contribute to Katrina relief is 1-800-O CANADA (1-800-622-6232). Information on how to help is also available on the web sites of Foreign Affairs Canada, International Trade Canada (for companies wishing to sell to the US market) and the Canadian Red Cross and other NGOs.

Other contact information for PSEPC is for USG use only, not for public distribution.

Caution on food aid

12. FAS raised a concern about the possibility that food included in emergency relief shipments from Canada would not be in compliance with our import regulations. Post raised the issue with Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness Canada, which was not aware of food aid, but would note that potential shipments should be cleared with the Canadian Food Inspection Agency. FAS noted that even MREs could be a problem if they contain inadmissible Canadian beef products.

More spaces for students

13. According to press reports, the Premier of Prince Edward Island announce that there will be spaces at the provincially operated university and college to students at three New Orleans universities.

In Nova Scotia, Acadia University (ref A) and three Halifax universities - Saint Mary's, Mount Saint Vincent and Dalhousie - are offering to help students affected by the hurricane. Financial and housing assistance varies according to the school.
